1 view from lesbians
by one shaver

2 strong feelings
a survey of students

3 in sex lies inequality by heather barnes

4 i was raped
an anonymous article

5 sex and God
by troy duham

6 interracial sex
by kim cockrell

7 sex, booze . . .
by sandy sherman

8 stds: are u at risk?
by dr. dale x. gerding

9 sex in sweden
by o. wetterspott

10 nymphomaniac
(fiction) by r. smith

11 good fight
by two randalls

12 any excuse to talk about marsha

13 argh! i always loved marsha. jan? jan was cute and had beautiful hair, but marsha, in my 10-year-old eyes,
was a woman!

14 if it is possible to watch entirely too much tv, then i do now and always have. the black and white set in my dorm room now only gets nbc and some other station, so i can’t watch the brady bunch anymore unless i get to the tv lounge first and can capitalize on the only advantage of re-run cable.

15 last night i didn’t get to the tv first. outvoted and rendered powerless, i was compelled to watch doogie howser, m.d., an nbc show about an 18-year-old practicing physician. once i reluctantly accepted the premise, i became absorbed.

16 don’t get me wrong, i’m not ready to start up a denison chapter of the doogie howser fan club, nor will i make it a weekly habit to watch his continuing adventures, but at the climax of the admittedly entertaining story we watched wide-eyed as doogie howser got laid. well . . . we, the viewers, didn’t get to see him actually have sex—I think this is probably best—but it was made clear that he had copulated during the commercial break.

17 unmarred 18-year-olds don’t have sex on tv.” i found myself saying in my head. “not even 18-year-old doctors who make 10-times denison tuition a year.” even greg brady, a high school football star who reeked of testosterone and turned girls’ heads with his tight-fitting beige and brown bell bottoms, never had sex in the privacy of his psychedelic attic. my views on sex have been partially molested by censors. thousands of unwanted pregnancies,abortions and rapes later, we have seen the tips of the flames of hell—and finally the light of day.

18 the media are confronting sexual rac-isms, homophobia and the attitudes that cause rape; they are educating the public about safer sex practices, aids and other stds. but the media won’t (and can’t be expected to) solve the world’s problems in one-half-hour episode (or a 25-page issue).

19 for now, i’ll wait downstairs for beverly hills 90210 to end so i can turn to the brady bunch and zone-out on the couch. under the affectionate eyes of ann b. davis as alice, as those nine special squares light up with the nine naive faces that shaped our lives, i’ll inhale a candy cigarette and blow a ring of smoke at the tv.

20 the Bradys on sex

21 any excuse to talk about marsha

22 the castration of provincialism will have to be a slow, painful process.

Chairman john boyden editor-in-chief brian rogers director of photography venessa williams senior editors vernell j. bristow debbie sinclaire annika smith
editorial assistants rob almoney jenn baker valerie cooperider
kim cooperider
rich van der klok robin will financial manager derrick pryor art dudie daniel benboe caricaturist dev bennett special thanks to the gang at public affairs (who do not contribute to the magazine financially, by the way) david altepeter, john berry, chuck blevins, jean carpenter, ellen kraft, john paulson, jon puchalski, paul rinkes, tricia ruess, john boyden,

and especially lorraine wales.

photographs in this issue are not of our individual writers; these photos are placed to artistically enhance the magazine.