Editorial Board: Alex Blazer, Amy Blessing, Melissa Bostrom, Cathy Gray, Kent Huffman, Glenda Insua, Julie Johnston, David Kendall, Derek Matson, Elena Rudy, Amy Spears, Sarah St. Angelo, Lynn Tramonte

Faculty Advisors: Kirk Combe, Linda Krumholz, Lisa McDonnell, Dennis Read

Editorial Policy: Articulate is designed to promote and recognize excellence in critical writing among Denison English majors and minors. A joint student and faculty journal, Articulate is published in the Spring semester and features student essays of literary and cultural criticism. Articulate will consider papers written by Denison undergraduates in any area of literary and cultural criticism. While the journal is designed primarily for the critical writing of English majors and minors, all submissions of high quality will be carefully reviewed by the student editorial board. Also, faculty are encouraged to recommend particularly strong essays from their classes for publication in Articulate. As a special feature, every year Articulate will publish the essay that wins the Robert T. Wilson Award for Scholarly Writing.

Submissions should combine research with original insight and not exceed 15 typed, double-spaced pages. (However, if they are of exceptionally high quality, essays of greater length occasionally will be considered for publication.) Please use MLA parenthetical documentation. Initial submissions should be in hard copy only; if a piece is selected for publication, the author will be asked to submit on disk a specifically formatted electronic manuscript of her or his work. Please submit your essay with your Slayter box number only on it, not your name. The journal accepts submissions at any time during the academic year. Send your essay to: Editors

Articulate
Department of English

Articulate is a publication of the Denison University English Department with kind funding from the Trustees of the Denison University Research Foundation.
Contents

Antonio, Mercutio, and Shakespeare's Portrayal of Homosexuality in Elizabethan England, Andrew Murphy, '98 (winner of 1996 Robert T. Wilson Award for Scholarly Writing) .......... 1

Glamour and Drag: The Element of Performance in Kiss of the Spider Woman and M.
Butterfly, Adrienne Fair, '96 ............................................................... 13

Self and Society in A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man, A Pagan Place, and Amongst Women, Erin Lott, '96 .............................................................. 24

Lesbian Vampires, Goddess Traditions, and the Reclamation of Lesbian Herstory,
Anne Heath, '98 ................................................................. 30

Woman in Madness: Ophelia and Lady Macbeth, Melissa Bostrom, '96 ......................... 38

Madonna's Postmodern Eroticism, James Smith, '97 .................................................. 45

The Comic Rival: An Evolution from Molière's Trissotin and Wycherley's Sparkish
To Stiller's Michael, Mark Evans Bryan, '96 .................................................. 49

Grasping Freedom: The Use of Hands in Toni Morrison's Beloved, Elena Rudy, '97 ........ 55

"What Separates Me from You Now?": Exposing the Differences between the Male and Female Hero, Margaret McGoun, '96 ................................................. 59

In the Kingdom of the Blind: the Deconstruction of The Hero With a Thousand Faces, Kent Huffman, '96 .............................................................. 70

Romeo and Juliet: Communication Through Song, Melissa Barnett, '96 ....................... 82

Ambivalent Family in Angels in America: A Redefinition of Family, Amy Ard, '96 ........ 91

Copyright 1996
English Department, Denison University, Granville OH 43023
All rights return to the author upon publication