Forgetting

BY WILLIAM BENNETT

The leaves are sunny in aluminum sunlight,
Shaking history from the Christ-like air,
Gliding to earth as dust drops
In light, weaving fantastic patterns
Across nature’s crisp and naked chest;

Mad love, gather beside me, so that I
Can see gold ribbings in a chapel
Twilight, as October sinks in me.