November Morning

BY JOSEPH ARNOLD

Then cry the cock of the morning winds and steal the light from stars afire Blunt their burning blue-white wink and spill gray dawn from the eastern rim

Turn the grinding engines over and open doors to the misty morning The scolding hags will rattle cans and fog their way on dew drenched streets

Yes, raise the dust of yesterday's work and plan the pattern of this dingy day

Curse and fumble—struggle, fall Winter is the end of all
